Will Anderson	The Ending Everyone Wanted	CD

Regarding the placement of poetry, in the case of poems whose length requires that they appear on more than one page, we attempt to interrupt their flow only after a full stanza. When this arrangement is too distracting visually, we note the total number of stanzas accordingly. Being poets, scholars, and—most important—lovers of poetry ourselves, we feel it is worthwhile to distinguish clearly whether a line break was the poet’s decision or the editors’.

The text of Will Anderson’s radio play “The Ending Everyone Wanted” is available at Quiddity’s website.

Quiddity’s text is set in Garamond, its titles in Gill Sans, and its folio in Adobe Garamond Pro using a MacBook Pro and Adobe InDesign CS3 software. It has been printed by Versa Press, Inc., in East Peoria, Illinois.
